Acquaintance accused in brutal attack: Family

Burned, emaciated Calgary man dumped at Regina hospital

The family of a Calgary man who was dumped at a Regina hospital last month with severe injuries say he's accused an acquaintance of attacking him.

CTV Winnipeg reported that Renee LaFortune, whose son Dustin, 26, turned up at the hospital emaciated, burned and with a brain injury, says her son has been able to speak to police.

Officers in Regina have not identified any potential suspect in the case.

"It was inhumane and absolutely uncalled for."

Marcel LaFortune, victim's cousin

Renee still doesn't know why her son was treated this way.

"I'd like the police to tell me what kind of motive there could be, what kind of motive causes someone to do that to another human being," she said from her home in Victoria, B.C., yesterday.

Dustin moved to Calgary about two years ago from Winnipeg, but at the end of February he could not be found.

In April, family members got a call that said he'd been located at a hospital.

Marcel LaFortune said he believes his cousin was held against his will and tortured.

Dustin, who weighed about 245 pounds, is now about 87 pounds and had to be admitted to intensive care when he showed up at the hospital in Regina.

Marcel said he believes that with time, the family will be able to piece together the circumstances that led to Dustin's severe injuries.

"It was inhumane and absolutely uncalled for no matter what the circumstances may have been," he said.

Regina police are continuing to investigate but no charges have been laid.

School zone times may be extended

COMMITTEE The city may be adding a half-hour onto school zone times if an amendment to the traffic bylaw is passed on Wednesday.

The land use, planning and transportation committee could be changing the start time of school zone hours from 8 a.m. to 7:30 a.m.

Ald. Andre Chabot explained that the city is hoping to create consistency between school zone times, which they have legislative authority over, and playground zone times, which fall under provincial authority.

"If we're going to change our times, it would just seem prudent to change the ... start times for the playground zones," said Chabot.

If this amendment is passed, Chabot said it would come in to effect for the upcoming school year. The committee is projecting the cost of changing the school zone signs will be $25,000, but that does not include the cost of informing drivers of the changes.

"The $25,000 doesn't envision any kind of a communications plan, and they say that typically ignorance is no excuse for breaking the law, but if we're making a significant change like that it would only seem prudent to put out a communications plan to make sure that people are informed," said Chabot.

Dressed in chainmail armour and wielding swords, this local gang is a menacing sight.

However, despite their loud war cries, these fighters are faking it.

The Dragon's Own, a medieval re-enactment group, sparred yesterday afternoon in Pearce Estate Park for a crowd of more than 50 onlookers.

"We try to combine Western martial arts which involves sword fighting along with stage (improvisational) acting," said tournament marshal Benn Weller.

Although the show is not rehearsed in advance, some previously choreographed elements are included. "They're partially for safety and partially for entertainment," said Weller.

Similar to a hockey tournament, fighters duel one-on-one until a final winner is named. Points are awarded based on blows as determined by the marshal.

Fights can last up to five minutes, depending on the rules used as chosen by those playing.

Dragon's Own

- Members: 20
- Active fighters: 12
- Active women fighters: 3
- Founded: 11 years ago
- Years represented: AD 800 – 1400 BC.

The swords and staffs used are made of blunted metal, but they pack a real punch. Thus, blows to the head are only allowed if both players agree to it before their duel.

Each fighter has developed a character whose role they play. Dean Goffinet fights as Bertrand, a knight from the 1300s.

A knife grafter by trade, Goffinet has been with the Dragon's Own for 10 years.

"It's just about getting out with the guys, using our equipment, and having fun," he said.

Spectators watched wide-eyed as swords struck shields.

"It's pretty cool," said Aiden Kindopp, 12. "I really like it."

Now in its 11th year, the group hopes to hold annual tournaments for public viewing. The Dragon's Own practise every Sunday, weather dependent, in Pearce Estate Park.

No suspects in string of fires; targeted school set to reopen

INVESTIGATION The doors of Fish Creek Elementary School will be open today even after fire was set to a classroom during the early hours of Saturday morning.

Police believe the fire was one of a series set around the southeast community of Sundance that morning, most of which were lit in garbage cans.

The school fire is thought to have been set around 3:30 a.m., said the acting inspector for the Calgary Police Service.

Duty Insp. Terry Larson said police believe someone either stuck their hand in and lit something on fire or something that was already on fire was thrown into the school.

"Well, the window was broken, but we're not sure with what and as far we know no one obtained entry other than sticking their hand inside," Larson said.

"There was one classroom that received a bit of fire damage and then it also had smoke and water damage and then there were four classrooms that had smoke and water damage to them," said the spokesperson for the Calgary Board of Education, Ted Flitton.

Despite the damage, Flitton said the school would be operating without the use of those classrooms.

In total, police believe that there were at least six fires set and there are no suspects at this point.

Princess Margriet of the Netherlands, right, and Ald. Druh Farrell lead a mass of cyclists as they head out from Eau Claire Market.

PETER MCCARTNEY

GETTING AROUND More than 200 orange-clad cyclists accompanied Princess Margriet of the Netherlands in exploring and promoting Calgary's bike paths yesterday.

Go Green, Go Dutch, Go Bike! came to Calgary for the first time this year though the Netherlands has hosted the event in other Canadian cities.

Hans Driesser, the consul general in Vancouver, calls biking "a triple whammy:

It's good for your health; it's good for transportation; and it's good for the environment."

"We have a very ancient biking culture in the Netherlands. In Calgary it is just beginning," said Driesser. "You must lure people in a light way to using the bicycle."

He hopes the event will do just that, and help promote the Netherlands on the side.

Will Van Tiel, a Calgarian from the Netherlands, enjoyed the festivities with his mother and kids.

"In the Netherlands, everyone rides their bikes," Van Tiel said. When there's a special occasion or something, you see bikes stacked up. In this city it's getting expensive to park downtown, but you can park your bike anywhere!

"I do see that in Calgary, there's a lot of recreational biking, but I do not see many people going shopping or commuting on bikes," he said.

In the Netherlands, where there are more bicycles than people, 27 per cent of all trips are made by bikes.

Hubby discovers affair, woman sues Rogers

A Toronto woman says the billing practices of Rogers Wireless Inc. led to her husband discovering her extramarital affair.

Now the woman, whose husband walked out, is suing the communications giant for $600,000 for alleged invasion of privacy and breach of contract, the results of which she says have ruined her life.

In 2007, Gabriella Nagy had a cellphone account with Rogers, which sent the monthly bill to her home address in her maiden name. Her husband was the account holder for the family's cable TV service at the same address. Around June 4, he called Rogers to add Internet and home phone. The following month, Rogers mailed a "global" invoice for all of its services to the matrimonial home that included an itemized bill for Nagy's cellular service, according to the statement

Rogers's rebuttal

In a statement of defence, Rogers says the company "cannot be held responsible for the condition of the marriage, for the plaintiff's affair and consequential marriage breakup, nor the effects the breakup has had on her. Rogers is not the cause of these. The marriage breakup and its effects happened, or alternatively would in any event have happened, regardless of the form in which the plaintiff and her husband received their invoices for Rogers services in July 2007."

of claim filed in Ontario Superior Court of Justice. When Nagy's husband opened the Rogers invoice, he saw several hour-long phone calls to a single phone number.

"Nobody does business this way and he's not stupid," says Nagy, who is in her 30s. He called the number and spoke to the "third party" who confirmed the affair, which had lasted only a few weeks, Nagy told the Toronto Star.

"My husband didn't tell me that's how he found

According to the statement of claim, which hasn't been proven in court, "The husband used the previously private and confidential information that the defendant unilaterally disclosed to the husband to inquire about the people that the plaintiff was telephoning and the nature of such calls."

est energy consumer by 2050, according to Transport Canada. So, what do we do about that?

Electric vehicles would switch our consumption from oil to other sources, and if those sources were low-impact, I'd say electric vehicles could be part of the answer. But here in Alberta, our electricity grid is fed by coal (more than 70 per cent) and coal isn't the answer to anything.

Switching to vehicles that consume less gasoline should be part of the solution. Canada and the U.S. announced plans last month to enact fuel-efficiency standards for new vehicles. That's helpful, but it doesn't affect vehicles on the road today.

What it really comes down to is getting people out of their cars. Using public transit, walking or cycling equates to less fill-ups and less consumption.

"What it really comes down to is getting people out of their cars. Using public transit, walking or cycling equates to less fill-ups and less consumption."

We've got a long way to go in Calgary. Plan It is a start — if we enact its smart growth principles. Our pathway system is fantastic, but we lack on-street cycling infrastructure. And while we've started investing more in public transit, we have a huge transit deficit to overcome. Perhaps most importantly, we lack strong leadership.

Vancouver Mayor Gregor Robertson wants his city to be the greenest in the world. Building on some pretty solid bicycle infrastructure, city council there unanimously passed plans to dedicate $25 million, or 33 per cent, of the city's transportation budget to bike lanes over the next two years. Contrast that to Calgary, where less than one per cent of our transportation budget is put towards cycling infrastructure and it's clear we're lacking leadership.

If we want to avoid the risks of oil development — from offshore or oilsands — we need to reduce our consumption and a good place to start is transportation.

Canadians want Jean to remain GG: Poll

Canadians still like having Michaëlle Jean as their de facto head of state, a new poll suggests.

With Stephen Harper preparing to replace the Haiti-born, fluently bilingual Jean as Governor General, almost half of Canadians asked say they would prefer it if the prime minister reappointed her to another five-year term.

The latest opinion sampling for The Canadian Press finds that 58 per cent of respondents believe Jean has done either an excellent or good job as Governor General. Only five per cent think she has performed poorly.

Similarly, 47 per cent believe Harper should appoint her to another term, as opposed to 36 per cent who believe he should find someone new.

The results have not changed much from the last time Harris Decima asked the question in April, indicating that opinions about Jean are fairly entrenched.

Pollster Doug Anderson said Canadians likely don't spend a lot of time thinking about the performance of the viceregal, but what they know about Jean they have generally liked.

Still, he said it would be a mistake to say Canadians are clamouring for her reappointment.

"I don't think people have a very high expectation for that role," he said. "But for all the things that people know that she did, they feel she was probably doing her best and being a good person in that role."

The survey of 1,000 was conducted between May 6 and 9 and is considered accurate plus or minus 3.1 percentage points, 19 times out of 20.

Pesticides in foods may contribute to ADD: Study

A new analysis of U.S. health data links children's attention-deficit disorder with exposure to common pesticides used on fruits and vegetables.

While the study couldn't prove that pesticides used in agriculture contribute to childhood learning problems, experts said the research is persuasive.

"I would take it quite seriously," said Virginia Rauh of Columbia University, who has studied prenatal exposure to pesticides and wasn't involved in the new study. More research will be needed to confirm the tie, she said.

Children may be especially prone to the health risks of pesticides because they're still growing and they may consume more pesticide residue than adults relative to their body weight.

In the body, pesticides break down into compounds that can be measured in urine. Almost universally, the study found detectable levels: The compounds turned up in the urine of 94 per cent of the children.

The kids with higher levels had increased chances of having ADHD, attention-deficit hyperactivity disorder, a common problem that causes students to have trouble in school. The findings were published today in Pediatrics.

Seeing the world and learning first hand about organic farming is possible through WWOOFing — World Wide Opportunities on Organic Farms.

The organization works as a dating site — putting volunteers in touch with organic farmers all over the world.

It started in the UK about 30 years ago but now there are more than 6,000 hosts in 97 countries. And interest has grown considerably in the past three or four years.

"Interest is really picking up as sustainable living seems to be getting more and more relevant," says Katherine Hallowell at WWOOFing UK.

There are now so many willing WWOOFers that they are running out of hosts.

If you are looking for an organic working farm stay this summer you had better start searching for your match in the country you are interested in right now.

"It pays to be prepared" warned Hallowell.

Start the search at www.woofinternational.org and find your way to the country you are interested in. To see the contact details of hosts you need to become a member of that country's WWOOFing organization. (In the UK for example it costs $20 to be a volunteer and $30 for a farm to be listed). Price of panels dropping as use becomes common

For Metro Canada

Electricity bills are rising. Power use is an eternal issue. Maybe you're curious about solar power, but think converting your house is too big — and too expensive — a job.

Not so, says Michael Boxwell, author of The Solar Electricity Handbook.

"The best way is to start small, and build up," Boxwell says. "I've got a house that gets very little direct sunlight. So putting a solar panel system in, that costs tens of thousands of dollars, would be crazy. But putting in enough solar power just to run the lighting in the house: that's easy. Get started with something like that. And if you like it, you can put more panels in and power more things."

The actual cost can be surprisingly low. "I spent about $150-$200, and I've got a basic system. I'm doing a little bit to reduce my carbon footprint, and in case there's a power failure, I've still got lights on."

Not only will every solar panel reduce your energy bill and footprint, Boxwell says the very act of generating your own power greatly increases your green awareness, as well.

"When you generate your own power, your much more aware of what you're using. You become aware that your television

Perhaps the best news? The price of solar technology is plummeting.

"The glass they use for the solar panels is the same glass they use for flat-screen TVs. Because those have become widespread in the past few years, the cost of actually manufacturing this glass comes right down. They're even now able to make solar panels by printing silicon onto sheets of plastic. It's going to be so cheap you'll have solar panels on the back of cell phones, so they self-charge."

and your computer are taking power if they are left on. You start becoming a lot more energy-conscious if you've got a couple of solar panels on the roof."

And if you want to go entirely solar — get your house off the electrical grid completely — it's not as difficult as you think.

"It's not a big job," Boxwell says, reassuringly. "If you're comfortable with do-it-yourself and electrics, you could probably do it in two or three days. But you do need a

Newspapers more trusted

More people believe print over online media: Survey

Despite the growing popularity of online information, newspapers in their traditional printed form are among the most trusted sources of information, says a leading pollster.

Citing the results of a three-country survey of consumers in Canada, the U.S. and the U.K., Angus Reid said print newspapers are highly trusted even among young adults, aged 18 to 34.

Family first, blogs last

• Among consumers of all ages surveyed, family and friends were the most trusted source of information, at 78 per cent and 68 per cent respectively, followed by radio at 45 per cent, print newspapers at 41 per cent, online news sites at 39 per cent, television at 31 per cent, print magazines at 28 per cent and finally online social networks and blogs, at 13 per cent and eight per cent respectively. The data is based on a survey of 2,018 people in March.

"Print newspapers have a very large trust level.

Your challenge is leveraging that trust in the new media," Reid told a national conference of the Canadian Newspaper Association in Toronto on Friday.

Looking only at results for the U.S. and Canada, 44 per cent of young adults trust print media, roughly the same percentage as adults of all ages, said Reid, who is chief executive officer of online market research firm Vision Critical.

Inuit object to plans for 'test' oil spill

ENVIRONMENT Inuit leaders are concerned over federal plans to dump crude oil into northern waters next to a proposed marine conservation area so scientists can test new ways of cleaning up Arctic oil spills.

"We don't want this project," said John Amagalik, manager of lands for the Qikiqtani Inuit Association.

The Department of Fisheries and Oceans has asked a northern regulatory board to approve a plan to dump up to 1,200 litres of oil into Lancaster Sound on the Northwest Passage.

The tests would involve using a Coast Guard vessel to release 12 oil spills, each up to 100 litres. All slicks would be monitored by helicopter and oil would be cleaned up using one of the test methods.

The request comes as a time when the world is watching the continuing oil-spill debacle in the Gulf of Mexico and Canada debates the future of its own offshore drilling regulations.

Flyers soar over Habs

(Philly leads series 1-0)

Canadiens 0 Flyers 6

James van Riemsdyk, Daniel Briere and Simon Gagne scored in the second period and Michael Leighton made 27 saves for his first career playoff shutout as the Philadelphia Flyers opened the NHL Eastern Conference final with a 6-0 rout of the Montreal Canadiens last night.

The Flyers chased goaltender Jaroslav Halak midway through the second after four goals on only 13 shots, which had the orange-clad Flyers fans mocking the Canadiens by chanting "U-S-A" and singing the "Ole Ole" celebration song, a favourite of Montreal fans.

Scott Hartnell and Claude Giroux added goals in the third against back-up goalie Carey Price, who faced 11 shots.

Braydon Coburn opened the scoring in the first period.

The Flyers lead the best-of-seven series 1-0 with Philadelphia Flyer Braydon Coburn prepares to score a goal against Montreal Canadiens goalie Jaroslav Halak in Game 1 of the Eastern Conference Finals last night in Philadelphia.

Game 2 set for tomorrow night at the Wachovia Centre.

"You win 6-0 or 13-0 or 1-0 (it) doesn't matter," Giroux said. "It's one win. We have to put this behind us and be ready next game."

As in their 6-3 loss to Pittsburgh in the opening game of the conference semifinal, the listless-looking Canadiens were outthel, and they did not get their usual stellar goaltending.

The Flyers ended up looking much like Montreal did through two rounds — blocking shots, allowing few clear chances on Leighton and making the most of the chances they got.

The Canadiens outshot Philadelphia 27-25 overall, but the Flyers were in control all the way.

"I don't think we had the compete level we needed," Canadiens star forward Michael Cammalleri said. "This team cares, the guys want to do the right things, but we weren't sharp tonight as we need to be on a lot of levels. But it's only Game 1. We need to regroup."

Niemi, Byfuglien help Blackhawks sink Sharks

Blackhawks 2 Sharks 1

Antti Niemi might finally be putting to rest all those questions about whether he is the Chicago Blackhawks' weak link.

Niemi made 44 saves, and Dustin Byfuglien scored the tiebreaking goal with 6:45 remaining in regulation to help Chicago get off to a fast start for a change this post-season by beating the San Jose Sharks 2-1 yesterday in the opener of the Western Conference final.

"He's been good for all year," forward Kris Versteeg said.

"Everyone seemed to be doubting him except us. We're confident in him. We have to give him a lot more help than we did tonight."

Niemi stopped almost everything that came his way in his first career game against the Sharks, helping Chicago kill four of five power plays, including a 6-on-4 advantage in the closing minute.

Most of our images of what a hypnotist does come from bad TV — but in the right hands, this technique is not about making people “very sleepy” so they can squawk like chickens.

For Edmonton social worker Terri Cooper, it's a powerful but simple technique that helps people change things in their lives. Cooper, now 43, was always a natural at counselling others. “I was one of those teenagers that everyone brought their problems to.” She studied social work at the Edmonton campus of the University of Alberta.

For more than a decade, she worked with families in crisis. It was difficult work, especially since few wanted her advice. “It's hard to work with people who don't really want to see you.”

Cooper wanted to help people in a more empowering way. While she was flipping through the want ads six years ago, she saw an advertisement for a two-day course on hypnosis.

The basics she learned showed her the technique had a lot of potential — and made her realize she needed to learn more. So Cooper began taking more courses in hypnosis and a psychotherapy technique called neuro-linguistic programming.

Cooper then quit her job and opened a private practice, offering hypnotherapy and social work counselling.

Most clients come to her with a short-term goal of changing a behaviour like quitting smoking, improving body image or increasing their confidence.

Cooper begins with an assessment to find out her client's goals and to make

Gulf city saying no to Sex sequel

Carrie & co. may be too racy for Emirates

Troubled relationships are nothing new for Sex and the City 2, it's unclear whether the film will be shown in oil-rich Abu Dhabi — the scripted setting where Carrie and her chic New York posse swap their Jimmy Choos for sandals and kick some sand at Middle Eastern traditions.

It's already been a rocky rapport. Emirates' officials turned down a request to film on location, forcing the crew to head to Morocco and recreate the Abu Dhabi setting. In 2008, the original Sex and the City film was not shown in the United Arab Emirates, where censors routinely remove scenes such as kissing, nudity and expletives from movies and television shows.

And Shooting Stars, the UAE representatives for distributor Warner Bros., said Emirates officials have still not made a decision about bringing the film to cinemas in the Gulf state after its May 27 release date.

The National Media Council, responsible for oversight of films and other media in the UAE, declined to comment.

Moroccan locations pose as the Gulf city of Abu Dhabi in Sex And The City 2.

The film exposes some of the complexities for Gulf cities trying to compete on the international stage. Abu Dhabi has aggressively marketed itself as an emerging hub for film studios and production companies. But there's a high sensitivity about plots perceived as too racy or politically charged.

The UAE's refusal to participate in the film reflects a desire to "control their brand," said Leila Hudson, graduate director of Near Eastern studies at the University of Arizona.

"To the Emiratis, that 'city' in the (movie) title sounds like it's referring — logically enough — to their Abu Dhabi rather than New York. That's a little too in your face," Hudson said.

Sex and The City 2 opens May 27

Glee cast kicks off tour

School's out, but the Glee kids haven't stopped believin'

The cast making up the popular Fox show's band of singing teen pariahs launched its four-city tour Saturday in Phoenix, anxious to bring the theatrics of a major network show to a relatively smaller stage.

While the show's battling adults, played by Jane Lynch and Matthew Morrison, were not part of the stage production, their absence was filled by taped messages to the audience. After an opening act by the excellent dance troupe Legion of Extraordinary Dancers, Lynch took to the screens snarling that the night's entertainment was about to make the audience ill. "You will be barfing," she promised on-screen as backup dancers in Cheerios uniforms passed out air-kissed bags.

It was the start of an evening that only a fan would appreciate, or even comprehend. Casual or non-viewers who paid upward of $75 per seat surely wondered why they spent so much to see costumes mostly comprised of colour-coordinated street clothes, or a backdrop of bleachers made to resemble a music classroom. Or perhaps pondered why the set list, which ran the gamut from Top 40s R&B to musical theatre to rock anthems, seemed so disjointed.

The connecting spirit of the show was deeply rooted in fan appreciation, starting with a list of song favourites from the TV show and going all the way to the cast's dash through an ecstatic crowd as Lea Michele, in character as glee club co-captain Rachel Berry, belted out Don't Rain on My Parade.

"This whole thing kind of feels like a big 'Thank you' to the fans," said Kevin McHale, who plays the wheelchair-bound Artie. "So this is like giving back."

But while the cast is happy to give the show's rabid fans, who call themselves Gleeeks, what they want, it also served up reminders that actors are behind the characters. When Corey Monteith drums during Mark Salling's Sweet Caroline, Salling announces the talent as Monteith's, instead of that of his character Finn.

It's a confusion revisited throughout, as the cast slips in and out of character. Heather Morris offers a few hilarious observations as ditsy cheerleader Brittany, but they're in sharp contrast to her expert dance moves.

The cast of the popular television show Glee perform during a concert to kickoff a national Glee tour Saturday in Phoenix.

Those impressed by the power in Amber Riley's voice also would be surprised that she sounds much softer in person. Her live performance of Christina Aguilera's Beautiful lacked the strength of her recorded cover, though it eventually showed up in the empowering Bust Your Windows. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Banned from United Airlines

NO MORE AIR MILES FOR HIM
Jonathan Rhys Myers has one fewer option when choosing how to fly now that the Tudors star reportedly has been banned from United Airlines, according to Radar Online. Myers, who's had very public issues with alcohol in the past, was denied access to an early-morning flight from New York to Los Angeles earlier this month after employees spied him slamming drinks in the first class lounge, a source says.

Bieber avoids Miley questions on Ellen

BIEBER ASSURES US HE'S PLAYING THE FIELD Justin Bieber's no one woman guy, but that probably doesn't bother Miley Cyrus.

People.com reports the tween sensation wiggled his way out of answering questions about dating Cyrus during a recent taping of The Ellen DeGeneres Show. "I'm dating around, hanging out with girls but not really dating," Bieber says.

"Like hanging around with Miley Cyrus?" asks Ellen as she shows a picture of the two singers walking side-by-side. A smiling and seemingly blushing Bieber quickly responds, "just like hanging around with people."

Bieber and Cyrus were snapped last week having dinner in West Hollywood, but the 16-year-old tried to convince that other girls are in the picture. "If you look on the Internet you'll see other girls that I hang out with," he says.

Later in the interview, set to air today, DeGeneres lets Bieber talk about what he's becoming best known for besides making teenage girls swoon — his hair.

Bieber says it takes him just minutes to put together his signature look. "Like, five minutes. Like, seriously. People are always like, 'yeah, right.' I get out of the shower I blow dry it and then it's done in like, five minutes," he says.

Looking for balance

CAREER SUCCESS DOESN'T MEAN MARRIAGE SUCCESS
Ryan Reynolds and Scarlett Johansson reportedly can't find a balance between their successful careers, and it could mean their marriage, according to the National Enquirer.

"Nothing is going to change unless Scarlett and Ryan can learn to compromise — and they won't. Scarlett won't cancel coming up or wants to go to, and neither will Ryan," a source says.

"They're struggling to see eye-to-eye on almost anything. From when to start a family — he's ready, but she isn't — to her smoking and what she sees as his reckless motorcycle riding. What's making matters worse is that their busy careers are keeping them apart, so they get really out of sync"

LaBeouf admits some mistakes

OK, THE MOVIE SUCKED, BUT IT MADE TONS OF CASH! With work on the third film in the franchise set to begin, Shia LaBeouf can finally admit that Transformers: Revenge of the Fallen wasn't really that good. "When I saw the second movie, I wasn't impressed with what we did," LaBeouf says, according to Page Six. "There were some really wild stunts in it, but the heart was gone." The actor, who is in Cannes promoting Wall Street 2: Money Never Sleeps, promises the third Transformers film "restores the human element that got lost in the second movie."

Metro Recipe of the Day

Speedy Two-bean Chili

INGREDIENTS:

- 2 tbsp olive oil
- 1 large onion, halved and sliced
- 1 fresh red chili, seeded and chopped
- 398 ml can no-salt-added chopped tomatoes
- 1 tbsp chili sauce
- 2 tbsp low-sodium tomato ketchup
- 2 cups low-sodium chicken or vegetable broth
- 1 tbsp chopped parsley
- 1 tbsp chopped fresh oregano
- 398 ml can red kidney beans, drained and rinsed
- 398 ml can cannellini beans, drained and rinsed
- 1 cup frozen corn, thawed
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1/2 cup light sour cream
- 2 tbsp snipped fresh chives
- Fresh oregano leaves (garish)

METHOD:

1. Heat oil in large skillet. Add onion and chili, and cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until onion is lightly browned, 5 minutes.

2. Stir in tomatoes with their juice, chili sauce, ketchup, broth, parsley and oregano, with seasoning to taste. Bring to boil, then reduce heat and simmer for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally.

3. Add kidney and cannellini beans and corn. Simmer for 10 minutes.

4. Meanwhile, mix sour cream with snipped chives. Taste chili for seasoning and adjust if necessary. Serve chili sprinkled with oregano leaves and offer sour-cream mixture separately.
